

Learning at the Speed of Change

Mr Christopher Marley
(Coordinator of Information Technology, John XXIII College, WA)

ABSTRACT

John XXIII College has the reputation of being an educational technology leader. It has led the way in optic fibre cabling and curriculum technology integration since the early 90's. Currently, the College's focus is web access to information normally stored in different databases, spreadsheets or other software programs. The "anywhere, anytime" expression has become a reality for the John XXIII College community. The John XXIII solution makes information you already have, available quickly, efficiently and securely to those who need it anywhere on the Internet. This includes software resources, email, school reports, student information, online school fee payment and other facilities.